INTRODUCTION

The Steam Packet Inn is located on the picturesque harbourside in the small fishing village of Isle of Whithorn at the southernmost tip of the Machars Peninsula in South West Scotland. The village is a popular tourist destination with a season that runs from March through to the end of October. Due to its proximity to the border the majority of the tourists (80%) come from England. The village sits 3 miles from the separate village of Whithorn which has a strong association with St Ninian, Scotland's first saint, who brought Christianity to Scotland. This religious link also brings many visitors from overseas.

In the village there are numerous self-catering properties and a number of caravan sites within easy reach. The field to the rear of the hotel is open as a popular free to use overnight parking area for campervans that brings significant numbers of visitors. Dumfries & Galloway is an area of diverse natural beauty – from the Solway Coastline to the renowned Galloway Dark Sky Park. Alongside tourists the village retains a solid local population along with being a popular retirement location, particularly with people moving from the North of England. Due to the relatively high property prices in the village these incomers tend to be affluent.

The Steam Packet is the only pub in the village. The other pub in the village has been redeveloped as the Five Kingdoms Brewery and has expanded rapidly and attracts a considerable number of visitors. The Steam Packet Inn itself is an established inn, boasting a Visit Scotland 3-Star Rating. The inn has 7 good quality letting bedrooms as well as a variety of restaurant and bar facilities to accommodate its guests. Alongside its enviable location the business also boasts a longstanding reputation as a quality food destination business. The pub is set up to function as a busy outlet with a well-equipped catering kitchen.

The owners have continually invested in the business over the years and this year have fitted a new walk-in chill and cellar refrigeration. The public areas are designed to operate with high volumes of trade and overall, the business is in turnkey condition for the new owners to take over and trade at a high level.

The pub is a multi-award-winning outlet for real ale, featuring in the Good Beer Guide for over 30 years. This has been further enhanced by the success of Five Kingdoms Brewery as the pub currently acts as the de facto brewery tap which is proving a big attraction. The seller's family have owned and operated the Inn for over 40 years and the decision to sell is to allow them to focus on other business ventures. This is a fantastic, maybe rare, opportunity to acquire a busy and profitable business with considerable further potential in a beautiful and developing location.
