Knightsbridge

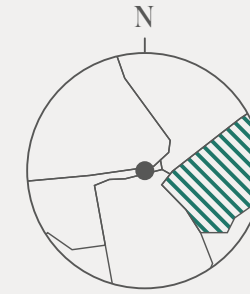

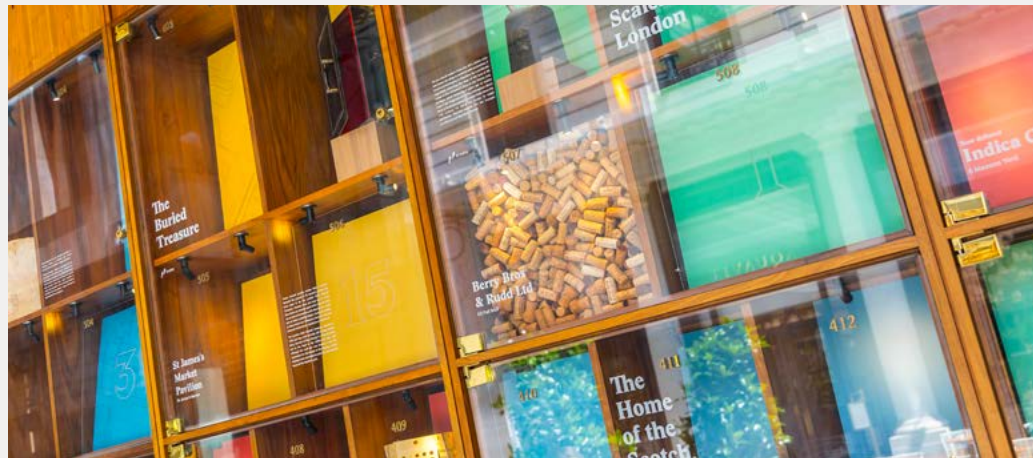

Knightsbridge is situated between Belgravia, Kensington, St James's and Mayfair. Home to high-end items, with Harrod's and Harvey Nic's at the forefront of the areas retail offering. Close to some of London's finest museums, all conveniently found on one thoroughfare. It is home to world-renowned restaurants and some of London's finest hotel offerings such as The Lanesborough, The Berkeley and the Mandarin Oriental.

Belgravia

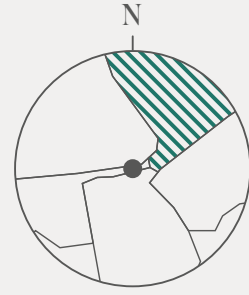

Belgravia is full of beautiful white townhouses and leafy green squares. Chic, exclusive little boutiques line its refined high street retail offering. Stand-out restaurants include Koffmann's in the Berkeley and Ametsa with Arzak Instruction in the Halkin.

St. James's

St. James's is home to some of London's most notable retailers, restaurants, galleries and private members' clubs, the area is now attracting a broad variety of occupiers, who compliment the areas rich heritage. These include the likes of Cicchetti's, Café Murano, Chutney Mary's and Milos for fine dining, The White Cube Gallery and David Gill for modern art, Tiger of Sweden and Sunspel for modern fashion, and Assos and Arc'teryx for sport and leisure.

Mayfair

Mayfair is one of London's most affluent areas. It gets its name from the May Fair, which was held there for almost 100 years until it was banned in 1764. Now the area plays host to some of the capital's most exclusive hotels, bars and designer shops, catering to the city's rich and famous. Mayfair also has numerous galleries and museums, including the famous Royal Academy of Arts, to keep you entertained.
