LOCATION

The Schott Building is prominently situated on the well-established Astonfields Industrial Estate on the north side of Drummond Road at its junction with Carver Road and about one mile north from Stafford Town Centre. Junction 14 of the M6 Motorway is two miles distant and provides access to Manchester and the north-west, London and the south-east by way of the M1 link and Bristol and the south-west through its connection with the M5. Stafford's mainline station provides Intercity connections throughout the national rail network.

DESCRIPTION

The property forms part of a complex and comprises an impressive three-storey headquarters building of flat-roofed construction with brick, glazed and clad elevations together with an extensive car parking facility. The premises provide office accommodation at ground, first and second floor levels accessed through an impressive entrance hall and split into a number of suites and single offices.

The available cellular rooms can be offered on a short- or long-term basis, but for a minimum period of twelve months, either singly or in various combinations to accommodate area requirements from 135 sq.ft. (12.54 sq.m.) upwards depending on availability at the time.

The rooms are accessed off central corridors and have suspended ceilings, Category 2 lighting, carpets and blinds fitted with shared male and female WC facilities are on each floor. There is a meeting room for general use.

The availability of this space offers an ideal opportunity for new or established businesses to acquire attractive offices in a prestige building on highly flexible occupancy terms not requiring any long-term commitment.
