The subject property comprises a substantial detached chapel which we understand was constructed in its current location toward the end of the 19th Century.

The property is of traditional stone construction with the main chapel being on two floors and the rear vestry and kitchen extension occupying a single level cut into the rear of the site. The main chapel has a main congregational area with stair access at the rear to additional gallery seating and the vestry at the rear which can also be accessed externally from the upper level at the rear.

The graveyard for the chapel is located to the rear and southside of the chapel.
